Editorial philosophy: Revista de Ciencia Política is an international peer-reviewed journal published by the Instituto de Ciencia Política of the Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile. It is published three times a year (April-May, July-August, November-December) and publishes articles in all areas of political science. It was founded in 1979. The articles published by the journal include all areas of specialization and methodological approaches within political science. The journal promotes the academic discussion of present and past political phenomena, as well as conceptual analyses, from the perspective of the various sub-disciplines of political science: political theory, comparative politics, international relations, formal analysis, regional studies, etc.
