

‘Challenges for Latin America in the Age of Globalization’

Friday 6th December 2019, 10-6pm

Twickenham, London

CALL FOR PAPERS – DEADLINE OCTOBER 15th 2019

The Politics and International Relations programme at St. Mary’s University, Twickenham and the Research Centre for the Study of the State, Power and Globalisation at Richmond, the American University in London will co-host a full-day interdisciplinary conference on Friday 6th December 2019 in the Waldegrave Drawing Room, St Mary’s University, Twickenham. The purpose of this symposium is to disseminate the research findings of both established and emerging scholars, as well as advanced graduate students that specialise in contemporary Latin America. We encourage submissions across all fields and disciplines.

The selection committee welcomes individual paper proposals that relate to the themes of both innovative and emerging research on either specific countries or transnational trends within the region of Latin America. We welcome papers that engage or interpret any of the following thematic yet broadly defined topics: the return of the Pink Tide?; politics and inequalities; economics and development; migration and diaspora; environment and climate change; energy; gender and minority groups; civil society and social movements; human rights and violence; associated theoretical debates concerning, but not limited to, democratisation, governance, historiography, participation, and justice.

Application Instructions

Please direct your enquiries and submit your final Individual paper proposals with a title and abstract of no more than 300 words by October 15th 2019 to conference organisers Dr Daliany Jerónimo Kersh (kershd@richmond.ac.uk) and/or Dr Christopher Wylde (christopher.wylde@stmarys.ac.uk)
